Hand-Loom Weavers. The picture shows the primitive method pursued by the Arab women for the weaving of cloth. This is not done by means of a loom or even a shuttle, but the warp is strung on beams, and the weft is passed through, patiently and slowly, from one woman to another, till sufficient coarse cloth is woven to form a length for a burnouse.

Tuck's Orlet views of our local country exist not. Only of several and important subjects. But we have local views of other fabrication, and I will send you, if you agree.

Kind compliments
